

Attention K-5 Educators! A new book delivery program is now available to all public and district-sponsored charter schools to help students who are not yet reading on grade level. The New Worlds Reading Initiative has officially launched and is delivering books to the homes of enrolled eligible students each month through June, completely free of charge.

The program is designed to create at-home libraries for K-5 students identified as not yet reading on grade level and foster a love for reading among students and their families. Book delivery began December 2021 and will continue this year through June 2022. Beginning fall 2022, books will be delivered from October through June each year.

Enrollment for New Worlds Reading is still open to eligible families. Messaging and flyers have been provided to schools to build excitement for the program and create a smooth enrollment process among eligible families. If you have not yet received flyers and resources for New Worlds Reading, please ask your school administrators for these items to share with eligible students and families. Teachers play an invaluable role in helping children enroll in the program. The School toolkit includes sample messaging and resources to use to raise awareness about New Worlds Reading with eligible families. If you have a student that is eligible, please tell their parents about the program and ensure they enroll at newworldsreading.com today!
